'My Aching Back' Can Be Corrected By Proper Lifting

"Oh, my aching back" need not be the theme song at your house if you and your husband regularly lift objects correctly.

Miss Todd, Home Demonstration agent, says that the body is a mechanical system of levers and hinges moved by cables just like many machines. Nature intended each bone joint and muscle to have a specific purpose. Overloading or using them improperly will injure the body.

If you or your husband does any lifting such as rearranging furniture, remember these safe practices: Get close to the object to be lifted, with a firm footing on the floor or ground. Get a secure hold on the object. Don't try to pick up more of a load than you can control. Be sure you have a clear view of where you are going with the object. Always bend your knees and keep your back straight when lifting. Push yourself up with the muscles in your legs, not your back.

If the load is too heavy, get help.

Examine lifting jobs critically. Whenever possible, rearrange the work to eliminate or reduce the amount of lifting.

Everything piles up handsomely in a Chevy II including savings

Imagine a low-loading wagon roomy enough to handle most anything you can heft—and still trim enough to slip into cramped parking spots. We imagined it, built it and called it Chevy II. Made it as dependable as a wagon can get. And made it so it'll keep piling up savings over the years. Those show up in the way this one goes and goes on a gallon. They grow with brakes that adjust themselves. An exhaust system that lasts longer. And Delco-Ron generator that keeps battery reserve power up. Want to hear more? ## UNCLE DAN from DOO-LIE says:

Dear Mister Editor:
Zeke Grubb's preacher come by the country store Saturday night, reported that the Lord's work was in a state of confusion at his Church right now.

First off, he told the fellers, they had a meeting of the Finance Committee on Tuesday night and Katie Hightower bring up the subject of trying to get some money folks in the Church. Katie said they hadn't got nobody with money in the Church in the last five year. Rufe Zinder's wife spoke up and allowed as how she had too note of the same thing. She said they ought to make a big push to get some folks with money in the congregation, claimed it would help out on the finances and would raise the standards of the Church.

The good Parson said he told 'em he would leave this problem up to the Committee, that for him personally, it was a heap easier on the preacher to work with pore folks. The Good Book he allowed, didn't say nothing about standards but it did say pore folks had a better chance of getting to Heaven.

But the big issue, he told the fellers, got started Sunday morning when Hezekiah Adams was teaching the Men's Bible Class. The Sunday School lesson was on the family, he said, and Hezekiah got along pretty good till he got to the place in the Bible where it says the husband ought to be the head of the house. Everybody know how henpecked Hezekiah is and they was holding their breath to see how he would handle the situation. Well sir, reported the Parson, Hezekiah swallowed a couple times and hauled off and said the Good Book was right! This bring a round of applause from all the members.

The Parson said he thought it was time to back Hezekiah up so he raised his hand to say a few words. He told the members the good Lord knowed that sooner or later the wimmen folks would try to take over, so it was wrote down in the Bible fer everybody to see — the husband should be head of the house. But he warned 'em that things was not going right, that the Bible says the youngins is supposed to obey their parents but they ain't doing it. And they ain't doing it, he explained, on account of their Mama ain't listening to their Papa.

He told the fellers that the members went home and told their wives what he said and things started to boil. Hezekiah's wife called him on the phone and told him to stick to his preaching and quit meddling. He reported he ain't seen a husband all week and he figgers their wives locked 'em up fer punishment.

The good Parson left a little early, said he better git on home and wash the supper dishes or his old lady might cut off his allowance.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

The Use And Misuse Of Pesticides

Dr. Townsend — is a practicing scientist in the field of Agricultural Research, particularly with seeds, plants, disease control, fertilizer, cultivation practices and breeding that have a major affinity to the Glades.

His years of association with the Everglades Experiment Station following his professional education, led him into private practice in his own field and laboratory.

This talk was delivered to Belle Glade Rotary Friday, January 11th and is of such immediacy and important interest, we asked permission to offer it to our readers.

It will be presented in installments.

This population explosion is due to the fact that Miss Carson chooses to ignore when she pleads for holding the balance of nature. If it were done in the way she would like, agriculture would be turned back to the horse and buggy days, and would be unable to support the present U. S. population, to say nothing of improving the lot of the rest of the world.

The second charge leveled by Miss Carson in Silent Spring is that we are poisoning the food supply, with pesticides. The facts seem to contradict her, for the American public never had it better so far as the quantity or quality of the food supply is concerned. We live longer, and are children grow taller in each succeeding generation. Public health and the control of epidemic diseases never better.

Miss Carson does not distinguish between what is toxic and hazardous in discussing pesticides. Almost any chemical will be toxic if used in excess. Table salt is a good example. When used properly it is beneficial and necessary, but it can be a killer if used improperly. This was seen in the death of several babies in a Birmingham, N. Y. hospital this summer. Someone accidentally substituted salt for sugar in the formulas for the babies' milk, and several died. This was a mistake, but we do not stop using salt because of it. Salt is not hazardous when used in proper amounts. Neither are pesticides when used in the proper places, and at the proper time.

The use of pesticides is under strict government regulation. Before a new pesticide can be sold it must be thoroughly tested to prove not only its effectiveness, but also its safety to

State Sales Tax Is Still Growing

State Comptroller Ray E. Green said today gross sales reported to his office in connection with sales tax collections during the first six months of the current fiscal year totaled $7,368,245.159, representing an increase of $532,801,698, or 7.79 per cent, over the comparable period for 1961-62.

Motor vehicle dealers reported the largest gain in sales tax collections for the six month period over 1961-62, the Comptroller said. The heavy sales of new cars appeared to be reflected in declines listed in gross sales by automobile accessories, tires and parts, and garages and repair shops.
